

ABSTRACT

A first receiving antenna having a broad antenna characteristic and a second receiving antenna having a narrow antenna characteristic are provided in a radar sensor utilizing the pulse-echo principle. A switching between the receive signals of both receiving antennas at the clock pulse of the pulse repetition frequency of the transmitted radar pulses takes place in the receiving path.